

More often than not, descriptive words such as "Fresh and Original" are very much over used when it comes to describing musical groups, especially relatively unknown ones. And with so many bands in the field of bluegrass music these days, it takes some pretty fancy footwork to live up to the billing.

Things like writing 90% of the music that you perform, or a five piece bluegrass band with five different vocalists. What about writing nine out of the twelve songs on your first recording, then following that up by writing all of the songs for your second recording? Well if that sounds pretty "Fresh and Original" to you, you're not alone. Most anyone in this business would love to be able to boast these accomplishments in less than three years of existence. New River Line is just such a band. With a brand new recording on the door step, an all original recording as mentioned above, New River Line will be no secret for long.

Based out of the Irvine, Kentucky, New River Line has written and performed original Kentucky Bluegrass music since 2003. With 3 superb songwriters in the band, they copy no one, having performed their own brand of original music from the Midwest plains to the East Canadian seaboard. Their 2006 Kindred Records release "Chasing My Dreams" is a noble testament to their originality, featuring all 5 members excellent vocal ability and creative instrumentation. The bands songwriting talents have been validated by other groups recording their songs, such as The Lonesome River Band, Lou Reid and Carolina, Ernie Thacker and Rt. 23, and Jeff Parker.
